—The Veteran McKinley Club will meet at the store of David Sennett tomorrow afternoon at six o'clock, to start for Franklin Grove to attend the Republican rally. All members urged to be promptly on hand.

North Dixon Rally Tonight.

North Dixon people are to have their rally for honest money tonight. All the Honest Money Marching Clubs of the city with the Dixon Military Band and two Drum Corps, together with fireworks, will parade on the principal streets of North Dixon only.

When the parade reaches Oak Park there will be speaking at the band stand by Mr. George H. Page and Hon. R. S. Farrand. The very high standing of Mr. Geo. H. Page in the business world and with our people and the very warm and generous feeling of pride and gratitude for Judge Farrand should bring out every citizen of Dixon.

The voters of North Dixon who favor honest money are requested to gather on the street south of Park at seven o'clock sharp to form in marching line. The Anglo-Swiss marching club is to form on east side of Galena avenue, opposite park facing south. The South Side marching clubs are to form at court house at 6:45. Then with Dixon Band march to North Galena avenue with head of column at Fellows street.

Amos Bosworth will be marshal of the parade and from him orders will be given to captains of the different clubs.

The line of march is as follows:—South on Galena to Fellows, west on Fellows to Hennepin, south on Hennepin to Everett, east on Everett to Galena, south on Galena to Boyd, east on Boyd to North Ottawa avenue, north on North Ottawa to Everett, east on Everett to Jefferson avenue, north on Jefferson to Fellows, west on Fellows to Dement avenue, north on Dement avenue to Chamberlain, west to Crawford avenue, north to I. C. Ry., countermarch half block to McKenney, west to Galena, south to Morgan, west to Hennepin, south to Chamberlain.

The Rally at Franklin.

Tomorrow is the day for the big political demonstration at Franklin Grove and everyone who can should make an effort to go. Our friends at the east end of the county have been generous in their contributions of enthusiasm to our political gatherings, and are rightfully expecting a return of their courtesy. We should send up as many uniformed marching clubs with music as possible, and a large number of citizens should go and hear speakers whom they have not yet had the pleasure of listening to. It will be a disappointment that General Clark E. Carr will not be present as announced, but his place will be ably filled by Hon. Daniel H. Paddock of Kankakee, who will speak at 2 p. m. Other speakers will be Hon. G. W. Kretzinger of Chicago, Hon. R. R. Hitt of Mt. Morris, W. I. Giffin of Pawpaw, Judge R. S. Farrand and S. H. Bethea of Dixon. Numerous bands of music will be present, and a monster torchlight parade will be the attraction of the evening, in which the Milk Factory Clubs, the McKinley Marching Club and several other organizations from Dixon, accompanied with music, will take part. A special train will leave Dixon at 6:45 sharp, and return after the rally, and the price of tickets for the round trip will be but 30 cents.

County Seat Question.

The Compton Graphophone hits the nail on the head and drives it home in the following editorial on county seat removal:—

"The special election, in the court house matter, will cost the county in the neighborhood of $2,000.00. This will be a dead loss, with no benefit in return except a little advertising for Amboy. The people in this part of the county felt inclined to favor Amboy, if they could do so consistently, and had those who have this matter in hand, done as they promised, and placed the $100,000.00 with the county board, many would have voted for the removal, not because it would be better for the county, but because it would help Amboy. No one can think of that village that was, but is not, without a feeling of sympathetic sadness; but when they neglect the most important part of the contract, are too proud to set forth reasons for the removal or even answer the arguments of their opponents, our feeling of sympathy fades away, and only the sadness remains.

—The Ladies' Committee of the Y. M. C. A. is requested to meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Thursday afternoon at half past two o'clock. Let all members attend.

—Paul Shogren, a three year old boy, is lost from his home. He has light hair and dark eyes. Information of his whereabouts left at Morris & Son's grocery store will be gratefully received.

FUSION MOVES OF THE PARTIES.

Republicans "Fine Drives" Only in Texas. While the Democrats Combine in Twenty-nine States—Populists Issue an Appeal—Sunday with the Republican and Democratic Leaders—How They Wound Up Last Week—Notes from the Front of the Political Battle.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The Republicans have a straight electoral ticket in forty-four of the forty-five states, having effected a fusion in only one—Texas, with the "middle-of-the-road" Populists and gold standard Democrats. The Democrats have a straight electoral ticket in fifteen of the states, having effected a fusion with the Populists and silver Republicans in twenty-nine of the others, a conclusion not having yet been reached in the remaining one. In some cases the Populists and silver Republicans endorsed the Democratic electoral ticket, but in others concessions of electors were made to them for their support of Bryan and Sewall. In two states, Oregon and South Dakota, the Democrats endorsed the Populist electoral ticket. The following table shows the states with a straight Democratic electoral ticket and those in which a division of electors has been made. The figures for North Carolina are those embraced in the proposition of the Populists to the Democrats, who, however, have not yet accepted their offer of division in that state, but the Populists, it is understood, still have hopes of effecting the fusion:

DONNELLY WRITES A WAR-CRY.

Call on the Populists to Vote for Their Leaders—Chicago Parades Are "Off."

The Democratic managers here are very much pleased with the appeal sent out Saturday from the Populist national committee, and which was written by Ignatius Donnelly. It calls on all Populists to vote for Bryan and Watson and sink all differences until after the election and work for the success of the presidential ticket. The appeal is especially directed to those who might have become disgusted because no arrangement could be made to take Sewall off the ticket and would refuse to vote on that account.

It says: "We have the noblest of leaders. Our candidate for president, Hon. William J. Bryan, has proven himself one of the great men of the country—not of all time. The power which gave us Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, and Lincoln, has by events almost miraculous brought him from obscurity to the forefront of affairs. He is more than an orator. He is a profound thinker—a logician—a born statesman. * * * We are no less fortunate in our candidate for vice president, Hon. Thomas E. Watson. He is fit to stand by Mr. Bryan and hold up his hand. A scholar, an author, an orator, a hero; a fiery-souled son of the gallant south; as wise and just as he is brave."

Following the visit of Tom Watson to Nashville comes the story widely circulated there that his unpublished letter to Senator Butler which has caused so much comment because of its reported undelivered, has been received and read by Butler's secretary, but technically has never been "received" by Butler. Chairman Washburn, it is alleged, carried with him a copy of the letter. Mr. Reed, of Georgia, also has, it is stated, a copy, and several prominent Populists in this country have read the letter. They say it may never be published, but if it is it will cause a sensation, for they term it a "scorcher."

The very warm contest in the Fifth Illinois congressional district, situated in Chicago, has been somewhat simplified by the withdrawal of Charles O. Sherman, the Populist candidate, in favor of Edward T. Noonan, the Democratic nominee.

Instead of there being two parades in Chicago next Saturday night there will be none. The Workingmen's McKinley club, which had the police permit to parade in the downtown streets, has given up its night to march, and the Democrats who took the matter into the courts and sought to enjoin the police from interfering with them if they marched without a permit, have also decided not to march.

War Generals Continue Their Campaign.
Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—The war generals who have been on a campaigning tour throughout the west in the interest of McKinley and Hobart were given a warm reception in this city Saturday. The Academy of Music, where the main meeting was held, was entirely inadequate and an overflow meeting was held in front of the Union League. Altogether it is estimated that not less than 10,000 persons heard the speakers.

RIGHT UP TO ELECTION EVE.

The Pilgrims Will Continue to Journey to the Republican Mecca.

Canton, O., Oct. 26.—Speech-making will continue at the McKinley home up to the very eve of the election. Yesterday, the opening of the last week of the campaign, found Major McKinley, to all outward appearances at least, equal to as hard work as he has experienced at any time during the campaign. He was up and around early yesterday morning, and in company with his brother Abner, of New York, attended church. Charles G. Dawes, of the national committee, arrived from Chicago and spent the day at the McKinley home. This week's programme opens with six delegations for today, fifteen for the succeeding days of the week and a large number of others only partly arranged. Many of the visitors will be long-distance pilgrims, today bringing a party from Boston, one from New Jersey and two from Indiana. The week will also include "college" day and "Youngstown, C." day, on both of which occasions large crowds are expected.

"The like of this has never been seen on earth before," said Charles Emory Smith, ex-Minister to Russia, as he stood by the Associated Press representative reviewing the great line of marchers parading on North Market street to and from the Republican Mecca Saturday. Business men and farmers came from New York, railroad men and workmen called by thousands from Missouri, Iowa and Kansas, some of the Grasshopper State delegation being on the road two days. There were school teachers, stenographers, iron, steel and tin workers, miners, Afro-Americans, first voters, etc. From early dawn until late at night the McKinley home was surrounded with a continuous jam, re-enacting the exciting scenes of the constant crush of other big days.

HOLDS A CHURCH RECEPTION.

Bryan Spends a Quiet Day After One of Big Crowds and Ovations.

Jacksonville, Ills., Oct. 26.—It was a day of quiet and rest that William J. Bryan spent yesterday in this city, where for six years he prepared himself for his after life. In the morning he attended services at the State Street Presbyterian church and listened to a sermon by Rev. A. B. Morris. It was probably the largest congregation that divine has addressed in that edifice. Long before the hour that the congregation generally assembled the church was crowded, and in front of the building many of the citizens of Jacksonville waited for over an hour in order to get a glimpse at the former citizen who had distinguished himself by obtaining the nomination for the presidency of three national parties. When he did arrive there was a general craning of necks and one of the admirers of his opponent cheered for McKinley.

After the sermon an informal reception was held from the pew, which Bryan had occupied, and as soon as possible the nominee was taken out a side door and put into a carriage and driven rapidly away. Bryan spent the day at the home of Dr. Hiram K. Jones, where he lived during his residence in this city. There were few callers. Today Bryan will address the students of the college in which he had studied. He will also address a mass meeting in the city park this afternoon, departing for Alton at 4:30. Saturday's trip here was another series of ovations, but the crowds that saw and heard Bryan contained a number of Republicans. He spoke at Ottawa, LaSalle, Ladd, Rock Island (where Vice President Stevenson joined him), Alexia, Macomb, Mommouth (where he criticised Bishop Worthington—Episcopal—for saying that over-education was what was the matter with the farmers), Bushnell and Quincy (where he addressed three large meetings).

CARLISLE SPEAKS IN PEACE.

No Interruption at Bowling Green—Speaker Showered with Flowers.

Bowling Green, Ky., Oct. 26.—Secretary Carlisle delivered the second of his Kentucky campaign speeches in this city Saturday afternoon. His reception was entirely cordial and free from any attempt at insult or interference. The secretary spoke at Pater's Opera House, which was crowded. If the headlum element was present it was afraid to make any sort of demonstration. Carlisle was wildly cheered at the close of his speech and met with a very flattering ovation throughout in Bowling Green. The secretary was greeted with a shower of flowers from the hands of many of the scores of ladies present.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 26.—A call for an indignation meeting to be held here to night at Odd Fellows hall has been issued. The call was made by the Commercial club, and numerous signed. The purpose of the meeting is to give vent to indignation at the conduct of the toughs who riotously disturbed Secretary Carlisle's meeting last week. In the meantime the Commercial club, aided by contributions outside its membership, has employed distinguished detectives to whom they will pay liberal rewards for ferreting out the perpetrators of the outrage and the supposed conspirators who employed the roughs. Sensational arrests are promised.

Speaker Reed's Campaign in Kansas.

Wichita, Kan. 26.—Hon. Thomas B. Reed arrived here Saturday and was greeted by possibly the largest crowd of people ever assembled at a political meeting in Kansas. Nearly 7,000 non-residents came in on excursions. These included eight bands of music, Reed made two speeches. One speech was in an immense circus tent to about 7,000 men, and the other was at the Auditorium to 300 ladies.

Throws 5,000 Out of Work.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 26.—Washington mills, one of the largest cotton dress goods manufacturing establishments in the city, was damaged to the extent of $75,000 by fire last night. The loss is fully insured. About 5,000 operatives will be thrown out of employment temporarily.

DEATH FOR EIGHT.

And Wounds for Thirty Others on an Excursion Train.

RESULT OF DISOBEYING ORDERS.

Collision Takes Place Thirteen Miles Out of St. Louis and All the Dead are Residents of That City and Most of the Victims Members of the Grand Army and Woman's Relief Corps—Frightful Tragedy Caused by Recklessness.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—Shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon two passenger trains on the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, going in opposite directions, collided nearly opposite Windsor Station, about thirteen miles from this city, instantly killing eight persons and injuring over a score, some of them very seriously. The killed are all of St. Louis. Their names are—Adolph Hohl, engineer of the accommodation train; Charles Mobine, Conrad Kuntz, C. C. Blevins, H. Thall; Barney McKenna, in charge of the refreshments; Miss Maud McKenna, aged 14, his daughter; John Cartwright. The collision was between the second section of an excursion train bound west and the "Frisco Valley Park accommodation."

Excursion Crew Disobeyed Orders.

From what can be learned the accident was the result of disobedience or neglect of orders on the part of the excursion crew, who should have remained at Spring Park for orders and let the accommodation through. The excursion train was the second section of a special bound for St. James, Mo., 100 miles west of St. Louis, where the Missouri Home for Aged Veterans was dedicated yesterday under the auspices of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps. The first section had gone through safely, and the second, which consisted of eleven coaches heavily laden with G. A. R. men, their wives and children, left St. Louis about 9 o'clock. According to J. D. Dishman, the telegraph operator and station agent at Spring Park, it should have stopped at that place. Instead of doing so the second section passed by the station and soon after met the accommodation coming down grade at full speed.

Hohl Knew Nothing of His Peril.

Engineer Hohl, of the accommodation, was not aware that the second section was on the road, and in trying to make the switch at Kirkwood crashed into the ill-fated train in a cut, just thirteen miles from the St. Louis Union station. There was only one car, a combination baggage and coach, on Engineer Hohl's train, but the collision was terrific, both engines being demolished and a number of the cars telescoped. The wreck was piled high on the track, and above the sound of escaping steam could be heard the cries of the frightened and injured passengers. Next to the engine of the excursion train was the commissary car, filled with refreshments. Barney McKenna was in charge of the edibles, and with him was his 14-year-old daughter Maud. Both were instantly killed, being scalded and crushed.

Death Came to the Feast.

A number of passenger, mostly young men, were grouped around the temporary counter eating and drinking. Almost all were either killed or injured. This and the next car in which were seventy passengers suffered the worst damage, and most of the killed and injured were taken from them. Engineer Hohl, of the accommodation, which was running on time, was killed and his fireman, Frank Hasler, badly injured.

MORE THAN A SCORE INJURED.

Names of Those Whose Wounds Are Severe—Further Details.

Twenty-one persons were more or less injured, but it is thought that not one will die. The worst injured are: Ferdinand Lange, St. Louis, internal injuries; David Garrety, St. Louis, head cut and legs bruised; J. E. Riblet, St. Louis, hips and legs injured; Charles R. Milentz, St. Louis, scalp wounds; Frank Hasler, of St. Louis, fireman on the excursion train, spinal cord injured and hurt internally; George Wolf, of Kirkwood, conductor on suburban train, hips injured and body bruised; Joseph A. Dryden, Springfield, Mo., engineer of excursion train, skull fractured and badly scalded; Fredrick Miller, Valley Park, fireman on suburban train, legs injured and badly bruised; A. K. Smith, Valley Park, baggageman on suburban train, head cut and hands and arms injured; Peter Hill, St. Louis, face cut and badly bruised.

It seems from the statements made by men employed on the line that the accident was due to the oversight of one of the oldest engineers on this division of the "Frisco," Joseph Dryden, who was in charge of the excursion train. He seemed to have entirely forgotten the accommodation train; and the overlooking of the train which was traveling toward him is all the more remarkable for the reason that he was for a time its engineer and was, therefore, perfectly familiar with the schedule.

Immediately after the wreck occurred people began to come in from all directions on wheels, in bargies and wagons and on foot and within an hour after the accident occurred thousands could be seen grouped around the pile of debris. Everybody turned to and in short time had rescued the injured and taken out the dead. Doctors from surrounding towns hurried to the scene and rendered what assistance they could to the suffering who were transported to places of safety. All the medical resources of St. Louis were placed at the disposal of the Irisco railroad as soon as the news of the accident reached the city.

Condition of the Monon.

Indianapolis, Oct. 26.—William H. McDool, receiver of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railroad, has filed his monthly statement with the United States district court. It shows the receipts to have been $384,645.82, and disbursements $377,503.63, leaving a cash balance on hand of $54,551.90.

Indiana Thief Gets No Pardon.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The president has denied the application for pardon in the case of Abrose Hamlyn, sentenced last March to Indiana to one year's imprisonment at hard labor for larceny from the mails.

Cripple Creek Gold!

Gold is what the world wants. Cripple Creek Camp produced last year over Eight Million Dollars of it.

It is now producing One Million Dollars a month—and the ground is hardly scratched. If you wish to make an investment that will make you many times the amount you put in, try the stock of the Bull Hill Gold Tunnel Co.

It owns a tunnel site 1500 feet by 3000 feet through the center of the famous Bull Hill. It will cut all the veins in that rich mountain. It should own a number of good mines. This stock is full paid and nonassessable, and a block of it is for sale at three cents (3) per share, (par value $100.)

Don't wait until this stock advances in price to 25 cents per share. Write or wire us how much you want.

POISONER THOUGHT TO BE INSANE.

Servant Girl Guilty of Three Murders and One That Was Attempted.
Kansas City, Oct. 26.—Miss Alice Platt, aged 28 years, a servant girl in the household of Charles Mussey, a prominent attorney, is under arrest on suspicion of having poisoned Mrs. Torrence, Mussey's mother-in-law, aged 60 years, and three children. She is believed to have been insane. Mrs. Ellen R. Torrence, Mrs. Mussey's mother, died suddenly five weeks ago supposedly from stomach complaint. Soon after that Hugh, a 6-year-old son of the Mussey was saved from Morphine poisoning, and Saturday Sue, aged 4, and Elizabeth, aged 10 years, died of strychnine poisoning taken in cookies given them by the servant. The death of Mrs. Torrence and the illness of the boy Hugh were at the time supposed to have been natural.
Evidence deduced tends to fasten the poisoning of all four upon the servant. At the coroner's office Miss Platt steadfastly maintained her innocence, but was held for developments. The only reason assigned for the alleged crime is insanity, which the Musseys have suspected of Miss Platt for some time. The body of Mrs. Torrence, which was taken to Keokuk, Ia., for burial, will be exhumed.
SHE WILL RENOUNCE HER FAITH.
Daughter of the Late Gen. Belknap Is to Wed a Hebrew.
New York, Oct. 26.—The sensation of the week in this city is the report of the coming marriage of Miss Alice Belknap to Mr. Paul May, of the Belgian legation. Miss Belknap is the charming daughter of the late General W. W. Belknap, secretary of war during the administration of President Grant. Mr. May, secretary of the Belgian legation at Washington, is one of the handsomest and best-looking young men in diplomatic circles. The course of their wooing has been uneven, the principal opposition to the match coming from the family of the young man, which is a power in Hebrew circles in Belgium, and very rich, flatly refusing to sanction his marriage to one of another faith.
He went abroad last June to argue the question with them, but returned to this country unsuccessful. Matters were in this condition until recently, when, report says, Miss Belknap suddenly made a decision which surprised society. She decided to adopt the faith of the man of her choice. It is said she will make an avowal of belief in the Jewish tenets and go through all the ceremonies which her change of faith demands. Then the wedding bells will be in order.
PRIMATE OF ALL ENGLAND.
The Bishop of London Named as Successor to Archbishop Benson.
London, Oct. 26.—The Rt. Rev. Frederick Temple, bishop of London, has been appointed archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England in succession to the late Most Rev. Edward White Benson. The new primate is the son of an officer in the army, born Nov. 30, 1821; was educated at the grammar school at Tiverton, and proceeding to Oxford became scholar of Balliol college, taking his degree of B. A. in 1842. He was elected fellow and mathematical tutor of his college, and having been ordained in 1846 was appointed principal of the training college at Kneller hall, near Twickenham, in 1848. Dr. Temple received episcopal consecration at Westminster, Dec. 21, 1869, together with the bishops-elect of Bath and Wells, and of the Falkland Islands. Dr. Temple published "Sermons Preached at Rugby Chapel in 1858-60," in 1861. In April, 1883, he was elected Bampton lecturer at Oxford for the ensuing year. On the death of Dr. Jackson in January, 1885, Dr. Temple was appointed bishop of London and was succeeded at Exeter by Dr. Bickersteth.

BURIAL OF EX-SPEAKER CRISP.
The Ex-Speaker's Remains Taken to His Old Home for Interment.
Atlanta, Oct. 26.—Ex-Speaker Crisp's remains were taken to his home, Americus, Georgia, Saturday, after lying in state in the capitol rotunda here for several hours Saturday morning, where they were looked upon for the last time by hundreds of citizens. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon. Governor Atkinson, the state officers, and a large number of distinguished Georgians were present at the obsequies.
Among the telegrams of condolence received have been messages from Secretary Lamont, General Schofield and Speaker Reed.

THE MAN WHO MURDERED ANDRUS
Coroner Miles Promises to Soon Have Him Under Arrest.
New York, Oct. 26.—Coroner Miles, of New York, is confident that he will soon arrest the man who killed Hamlin J. Andrus. "I have positive information as to who the guilty party is in this case, and will have him in custody in a day or two," was the statement made by him. Whether the supposed murderer was employed in the Arlington Chemical works or not is not known to any one besides the authorities.

Pabst and Miss Mather Divorced.
Milwaukee, Oct. 26.—Colonel Gustav Pabst, son of the wealthy brewer, and a member of the Pabst Brewing Company, has been granted a divorce in the Milwaukee county circuit court, from Margaret Mather Pabst, the actress. The ground alleged was cruel and inhuman treatment and the specific charge was that Mrs. Pabst attacked her husband with a horsewhip in the street on Oct. 24, 1895. No defense was made. A property settlement was made a year ago when Miss Mather left Milwaukee to resume her stage career.

Mother and Five Children Drowned.
Denver, Oct. 26.—While Andrew J. Spate, with his wife and five children, were boating on Smith's Lake, a small body of water within the southern limits of this city, the boat was by some means overturned and Mrs. Spate and her five children were drowned. Spate is a grocer at 1233 Santa Fe avenue.

Gould Failed to Get a Good Title.
St. Louis, Oct. 26.—Suit has been begun against George Gould in the circuit court here to recover possession of a tract of land in Carondelet valued at $300,000. There are fifty acres in the tract, which was purchased by Jay Gould before his death. He thought he was securing perfect title, but it appears that he was mistaken.

SCIENCE ON SEALS.

Our Position Sustained by an Expert Commission.
AMERICANS AND BRITISH AGREE
That Pelagic Sealing Is the Cause of the Scarcity of the Fur-Bearers in Behring Sea—Salisbury's Contentment Knocked Out on a Point of Great Importance—Possibility That New Measures of Restriction May Be Agreed Upon.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The expert commission which was appointed by direction of congress to visit the seal islands and make a scientific inquiry into the condition of the seal herds of the north Pacific and Bering sea has returned to this country, and its report is now nearly complete, awaiting only some figures showing the catch of pelagic sealers this season. The United States commissioners, Messrs. Jordan, Lucas and Stejneger, were accompanied by a British commission composed of Messrs. D'Arcy, Thompson, Maccoun, but while these gentlemen pursued their inquiries in company and frequently compared notes, the commissions will make independent reports to their respective governments, and there can be no joint action.

Against the Pelagic Sealers.
On one point of the utmost importance the United States and British commissioners appear to be in agreement, namely, that without reference to the causes which have brought the seal herds to their present alarmingly depleted condition the further operations of pelagic sealers will prove disastrous and threaten the extermination of the seals. This is a most important concession on the part of the British, as in the correspondence which led up to the reference of the question to these expert commissions Lord Salisbury's contention has been that the seal pirates inflicted little or no damage upon the herds compared with the losses sustained through the annual killing of seals on the Pribylov islands by the North American seal company.

Commissions Will Report Independently.
It is true that the Canadian and British experts were inclined to the belief that the present condition of the herds was in a large measure chargeable to the operations of the seal company in 1889 and prior years, when they were permitted to kill as many as 100,000 seals annually on the island. As the commissions will report independently the nature of the remedy to be recommended cannot be known yet. The American commissioners would favor, if possible, and while it is hardly probable that the British would be willing to concede this much it is believed that they may be disposed to recommend further restrictions upon pelagic sealing, either by extending the boundaries of the closed zone, lengthening the close season, or both perhaps.

Russians and Japan on Our Side.
The Russian and Japanese governments, having seals of their own to protect, are interesting themselves on our side of the case. The commissions visited the Russian Commander islands as well as the Japanese islands in the pursuit of their inquiry. A Russian representative is already in the United States to follow up the matter, and with the active co-operation of these governments in our interest it is hoped that the British will be disposed to consent to further restrictive measures, particularly as the time is now ripe, owing to the almost total failure of the pelagic sealers to make paying catches the past summer.

FRENCHMEN TO TRY CO-OPERATION.
Strikers Build a Glass Factory to Compete with Their Late Employers.
Albi, France, Oct. 26.—Great festivities attended the opening yesterday of the co-operative glass factory which has been put up by the former strikers of the Carmaux Glass works. The strike, which grew out of the discharge of a member of the glass workers' trade union last year, was transformed into a lock-out when the men notified the management of their willingness to return to work. Great excitement was caused by the incident throughout France, and efforts were made to induce the French cabinet to intervene in the dispute.

The Paris municipal council voted large sums of money to support the strikers, and many other municipalities all over the country followed suit. M. Landrin, of the Paris municipal council, at yesterday's ceremony saluted the workers in the name of Paris. M. Henri Rochefort delivered a speech, and with M. Jaures, the radical socialist deputy for Carmaux, lit the furnaces.

MISCREANT WHO IS HARD TO KILL.
Fires a Bullet into His Own Brain and is Still Living.
Toledo, Oct. 26.—Henry Ramm attacked his wife and party of ladies who were going to church yesterday forenoon with a revolver. He shot his wife, but missing her the bullet struck Mrs. Schmidt in the arm. Mrs. Ramm fled as Mrs. Schmidt fell to the sidewalk. The maddened man pursued his wife two blocks, firing at her constantly. She escaped into a neighbor's house. Ramm then returned and began another fusillade on Mrs. Schmidt. Then he turned his attention to his stepson, and fired several shots at him without effect. Then Ramm turned his weapon on the crowd that had collected. Ramm then walked across the street and taking off his hat fired a bullet into his own forehead about an inch above the right eye. Ramm was taken to the police station to die, but at 3 o'clock in the afternoon he got up and walked about the room and asked for a paper to read.

Bars Up Against the Atlas Bureau.
Washington, Oct. 26.—A concern claiming to have offices throughout the country has been barred from the mails by a fraud order against the Atlas Bureau of Claims and the Davenport branch "A B C," of Davenport, Ia. The order was based on a threatening circular to individuals to collect alleged debts. James Mason is the president and Clay Prentiss the manager of the enterprise.

IS THIS A FACT, AIRY FAIRY?

Report That Lillian the Lovely Is to Take Her Fifth Husband.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—For the fifth time in her comic opera career Miss Lillian Russell is reported on the eve of a matrimonial venture. The wedding, it is said, will take place in San Francisco about the middle of November, and the groom will be Walter Jones, who does a kaleidoscopic act in "In Gay New York." Miss Russell played here week before last at the new Century theater. Jones and "In Gay New York" followed last week. The prima donna remained over one day in order to meet him, and so the story goes, the matter was arranged. Miss Russell desired that it be kept a secret, but Jones, indiscreet in his happiness, told a fellow actor, and then—well, of course, every one knew it next.

Miscellaneous Awarded His Deserts.
Mansfield, Mo., Oct. 26.—In the case of Ed Perry, for the murder of the Sawyer family at Ava, Douglas county, last May, Perry was convicted and sentenced to hang. The Sawyers were inoffensive, hard-working people and had laid away a few dollars. Perry entered their home with an ax and slew the whole family, consisting of father, mother and son. He then took the money, threw the bodies in a heap and fled, but was captured soon after.

Costly Fire in Lumber Piles.
Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 26.—Fire broke out early last evening in the lumber piles on the mill premises of the Center Lumber company at Zilwaukee, six miles down the river. It spread into a very large conflagration, which destroyed about 8,000,000 feet of lumber. The loss will approximate $150,000, and is understood to be fairly covered by insurance.

It Was Some Other Tanner.
Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 26.—The Dr. Henry Q. Tanner who is reported to have lost his life in a fire at Akron, O., is not Dr. H. S. Tanner of fasting fame. Dr. Tanner lived here until a few months ago, and is now at Robinson, Ill., and he has been heard from within the last few days.

Woman Shoots Her Husband Dead.
Marquette, Wis., Oct. 26.—Marquette was thrown into a fever of excitement late Saturday afternoon by a tragedy in which Archie McDougal was shot to death by his wife. The fatal shot was fired from a revolver, the bullet entering the forehead. The woman is in jail. The couple had a tough reputation.

Women's Meeting at the Court House.

If anyone had doubted the interest of the women of Dixon in the political issues of the day, had they been at the court house last Saturday afternoon, their doubts on that point would have been dissipated. Notwithstanding that it was an afternoon meeting, the court room was crowded, and fully eighty per cent of the attendance was ladies. Ladies of all ages, married and single, flocked to hear Mrs. Geo. W. Plummer of Chicago, member of the Women's Republican State Central Committee, who upon the points which she touched gave one of the brightest, clearest and most comprehensive addresses we have heard during the campaign.

Mrs. Dorothy N. Law, chairman of the meeting, in opening the meeting stated that it was not a meeting in the interest of woman suffrage, but to show the women's interest in the vital questions of the hour, especially as effecting the educational interests of our state. She called on Hon. S. H. Bethea, who was present, for a few remarks.

Mr. Bethea said he believed this was the first meeting of the kind ever held in Lee county, and he congratulated the people on the fact that the women of the day were thoroughly fitting themselves for the exercise of the full right of franchise which he believed would not long be delayed. In proportion as women have taken an interest in the public questions that effect all alike, has civilization advanced. In two states today they have been accorded equal rights of suffrage. This state has as yet given them only the right to be heard through the ballot on the subject of public schools. Perhaps this is the most important of questions; certainly only which effects in a vital way the subjects of the home in which woman is queen. After a few words on the importance of correct education and some true words as to the power and influence of woman, he closed with an appeal to the women to keep the flag untarnished and aloft for the right as did the women of '76 and '61.

Mrs. Laura Dainty was introduced, and in introducing her magnificent rendering of T. Buchanan Reid's immortal poem of "Sheridan's Ride," said that when General Sheridan reviewed his troops after the battle of Winchester he found in command of an Ohio regiment which had been in the thickest of the fight a young lieutenant who is to be our next President—William McKinley. Mrs. Dainty was loudly encoored and gave another war poem, by Captain Jack Crawford, which stirred the hearts of her hearers.

Mrs. Plummer, who next addressed the meeting, is an unassuming woman on the sunny side of middle life; a woman of clear cut intellect and most pleasing address; a woman whose persuasive tones engage the sympathies while her logical reasoning convinces the intellect of her auditors. Perfectly fair and candid in all that she said, she left a lasting impression for good on the minds of her hearers, into many of whom she infused somewhat of her own quiet earnestness.

She said in opening that she was proud to address her auditors as fellow-citizens, for to be a citizen was a prouder position than to be a king. She did not know, she said, that her sisters were always glad for the additional duties which citizenship brought with it. Their time and attention were pretty well divided between domestic work, the various lines of church work, and the charities which largely devolved upon them. But said she to the men who were present, "we will not only take up our share of the ballot, but will help you in all ways in which we are permitted."

She then discussed most intelligently the question why women should vote at all, and especially why they should vote for University Trustees. 1st, because every citizen should always exercise the right of a citizen. Rights and privileges always carried with them corresponding responsibilities. 2nd. Because the state has not done its duty to the State University, placing it where it should stand among the educational institutions of the surrounding commonwealths. We send our sons to Ann Arbor and our daughters to Madison. Why? Because Michigan and Wisconsin State Universities are on a higher educational plane than our own. The Illinois University might be and ought to be made superior to either of these. Now that women are coming to the front in these matters, there will no longer be excuse for the ignorance of fathers and mothers as to the conduct of our educational institutions. An additional reason why women should vote at this election is that the Republican State Central Committee has placed on the ticket as one of the candidates for University Trustees a woman in every way fitted for the office. Mrs. Carriel is a university graduate, a thoroughly educated woman and a woman of sound judgment. Not all virtue reposes in woman nor all wisdom in man, and it is eminently appropriate that a co-educational institution should have a woman on its board of trustees. Mrs. Carriel's father, who was the founder of the University of Illinois did more than any other man in the State perhaps to further its interests, devoting his life and energies to the noble work, and Mrs. Carriel has from early childhood been cognizant of its work, its methods, its needs and its possibilities. No woman could have been selected who can be as useful and efficient a member of the board of trustees of that institution as the daughter of its founder and early patron.

Mrs. Plummer effectively answered the fallacious cry of non-partisanship, by showing very clearly that it is only through party organization that we can make our political action effective, or in fact can exercise a citizen's right of franchise. We want the best men and women in office; but how can we individually know who are the best in the state? When we appoint agents to make an intelligent choice for us we are in a sense bound by that choice. Do not scratch the ticket for the sake of voting for three women. You are liable to make a blunder and lose your vote; and if not, you are showing disrespect for the judgment of the committee who have chosen three persons whom they deem eminently fitted for the position.

Leaving the matter of the specific vote on University Trustees, Mrs. Plummer urged her hearers to use their influence to secure not the election of a Republican governor, for that was assured, but his election by an overwhelming majority, and thus emphasize a woman's scorn for a man who will pardon out of prison after six months, a wretch incarcerated for an assault upon a young girl which resulted in her death. She was sure, she said, that if the women of the state had a direct voice in the choice of governor, no man would sit in the gubernatorial chair who considered six months imprisonment a sufficient punishment for so brutal a crime.

Mrs. Dainty, at the close of Mrs. Plummer's address, gave a couple more rhetorical selections, the first, Riley's poem, "The Old Men and Jim," received a new significance from her masterly rendition.

At the close of the meeting, Hon. A. C. Bardwell by invitation addressed a few words to the assembly, which were in the first place highly complimentary to the ladies, contrasting their present political gathering, with its mingling of chaste and sweet utterance and solid and sonorous arguments, and the grosser meetings of the men in which too often sound strove to conceal the lack of sense. After declaring his surprise and delight, and his firm conviction that the purification of politics lay in the full admission of women to the right of franchise, he closed with a patriotic exhortation on the political questions in dispute.

Candidate Wm. J. Bryan here Thursday.

The Dixon Free Silver Club are busy making all preparation for the arrival of William J. Bryan on Thursday afternoon. They have not yet decided whether to have him speak in the North Dixon Park or at Court House Park, but from all appearance it will be at the latter place. The train will arrive here from Polo about two o'clock. He will remain in Dixon about fifty minutes.

He will leave Chicago Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, returning in the evening at 6 o'clock in time for his night meeting in the city. During the day he will deliver addresses at the following towns, Elgin, Belvidere, Rockford, Freeport, Forreston, Polo, Dixon, Rochelle, DeKalb, Geneva and Wheaton.

In the evening the Democratic clubs of this city and surrounding country will give a torch light procession. Judge Shakelford, of Chicago, will make an address.

It's Money They Want.

We doubted it at first—thought it inconceivable—but it is a fact, nevertheless, that Bryan is not talking for the good of his cause, but for money. A dispatch from Akron, Ohio, states that Samuel G. Rogers, chairman of the Democratic (silver) county committee, acknowledged on Friday evening that before Candidate Bryan could be secured for a half hour speech there on Tuesday the sum of $100 had to be paid. If the National Popocratic committee have any sort of a notion that they will hold up H. A. Brook, Theo. Fuller, Dock Robbins, Al Simonson, Henry Lydig, et al., for that amount, they are clear off. Not one of them is that kind of a free silver duck.

—Miss Kittle Gallagher was taken sick on the train on the way back from Ashton Saturday night. She is considerable better today.

CAN'T MEET ITS PROMISES.

Amboy Wants to Pay Fifty Cents on the Dollar for the Court House.

(From The Lee County Times.)
What one promises, he should make good. If he promises to pay a dollar he should pay 100 cents and not 50 cents. Otherwise he may be thereafter regarded as not worthy of trust. As our readers will remember, the Amboy court house committee canvassed this end of the county last spring in a vigorous manner, asking that we support Amboy in petitioning for the court house election which will be held on November 10th. They came with promises of furnishing $100,000 and a site if they could secure the county seat and our voters signed a petition reposing confidence in their ability to meet the obligations. We were willing to favor them under the stipulations of their agreement. We give them due credit for working honestly in hopes of raising the amount, but as they now admit, they were unable to secure subscriptions amounting to half that sum. They can no longer count on our votes for the change. Having failed to fully subscribe what they agreed to, they now have taken a new position and say they will post but subscriptions of $50,000 at the county seat this week. For the remainder of the sum necessary to build the court house they propose to sell the property given to the county by a citizen of Dixon and would thus be taking something to which they have no moral right. When Mr. Dixon gave the tract of land to the county he gave it in the name of the city of Dixon and for her benefit. It would therefore be outside the usual mode of transacting business matters, to sell this land to the disadvantage of Dixon. At first Amboy proposed to pay all the expense of obtaining the county seat and buildings, now when she is unable to furnish the goods, she makes another proposition and would have Dixon pay the greater share of the burden which it would necessitate. The subscription list of the $50,000 is not sufficient guarantee for the voters of Lee county to assist in this proposal, for there is no telling how much of it will be forthcoming. If anything is to be postponed, let it be cash, if not more than $100,000. This would give a greater confidence in the ability of Amboy to meet the issue. The Amboy Journal this week says: "A new court house is to be built right away whether the county seat be moved or not." As every one of our readers know, that statement is not true. If the decision is for removal, there must be a new building and if contrary there is no certainty of one. Let Amboy keep her agreement or else lose the support which she was promised.

[Our neighbor at Paw Pawpaw, The Times, has been told that Amboy has filed a subscription of $50,000. This is a mistake. Not a dollar has been put up by Amboy. We are creditably informed that only a few hundred dollars by responsible parties have been subscribed, and we positively know that not a cent of that could be collected. Of the $100,000 promised not a dollar has been or can be placed in reach of County.—Ed.]

Increased Attendance at the State University.

In spite of the depression in business which has marked the last three years the University of Illinois is steadily gaining in attendance. The registration up to date this year is greater than at the corresponding date in any preceding year. Besides the increased attendance at the departments located in Urbana, the newly annexed department of Pharmacy (formerly the Chicago College of Pharmacy) also shows a marked gain in its registration, a gain which is especially striking when compared with other schools of the same kind. The total number of students registered in all departments of the University in the year 1891-92 was 583. This year, on a comparative estimate, the total registration for the year will considerably exceed one thousand and may approach eleven hundred.

Labor and Free Silver.

The California Labor convention has adopted a platform protesting against the free coinage of silver, on the ground that such action would be class legislation, inasmuch as it would benefit the debtor class at the expense of capitalists. The platform declares that free silver would not benefit laboring men, as wage earners are not, as a rule, debtors.

THE TELEGRAPH cannot understand why a laboring man of ordinary common sense should imagine that free coinage could in any manner benefit him. The rich man who can buy a thousand dollars worth of bullion and have it coined into two thousand silver dollars could speculate in silver under a free coinage law; but the laboring man who has no money with which to speculate in such a manner would not be in it.

Big Rally At Ashton.

The citizens of Ashton witnessed one of the largest crowds Saturday night that that town has ever seen. The town turned over to the visitors to enjoy themselves. Clubs were there from Rochelle, Franklin Grove, Amboy, Dixon and other towns. Amboy sent a club of thirty young ladies. There were over three hundred tickets sold from Dixon. The train as it pulled out from here was composed of eight coaches. One was entirely filled by the young ladies from the milk factory. Some of the boys got together and collected all the boxes they could find and built a big bonfire in the street. The two restaurants there were unable to feed the crowd. They run out of provisions and then started to serve bologna sausage.

The speakers were Arthur T. Will and Samuel C. Rindskopf, both of Chicago, and S. H. Bethea of this city.

Hen Fruit Argument.

Bryan in a speech down in Kentucky illustrated the manner of increasing the price of silver bullion by free coinage by the illustration—at least that is the outcome—by the suggestion that if a grocer should mark all the eggs brought into his store: "This egg is worth two cents," (give them back to the farmer,) then all eggs all over the world will be worth twenty-four cents a dozen. That seems to have set the silver craze wild in the Blue Grass region, and when secretary of the treasure Carlisle made a speech for sound money at Covington, the Popocrats pelted Cleveland's Cabinet officer with unsound eggs. Bryan's brilliant statesmanship is about on a parity with his followers, egg arguments.

Not True, Doctor.

The Aurora Republican Free Silver Club numbers 451 members, and not one democrat in the ranks. Please show a city with that number of democrats who will support Rothschild's policy and high protective tariff.—Pawpaw Index.

It would take but a few minutes for the Index to learn the truth of the above, Aurora not being far away. Therefore THE TELEGRAPH will agree to give any church in Pawpaw ten dollars cash if the Index will give the names before election of one quarter as many Republicans in Aurora belonging to a free silver club. This not a bet you see, Doctor, but a simple proposition to aid one of your churches if you can show that you can tell the truth. You are a very patriotic A. P. A. leader, we have no doubt, but if you can not come any nearer the truth in that matter than you can in your Popocratic efforts, we doubt your efficacy in forwarding the interest of the order.

Amboy's Subscription.

Very few taxpayers in Lee county will be inclined to favor the changing of the county seat to Amboy if the county is to be put to the expense of erecting the necessary buildings. The people of Amboy have not submitted any proposition whatever to the Board of Supervisors, which is the only body legally representing or standing for the county. Common report, which is, however, difficult to trace to any authentic source, says that a subscription list, the conditions of which have not been made public, has been signed by a number of Amboy parties. Nor have the names of the signers nor the amounts subscribed been publicly divulged. Assuming, however, that there is such a subscription in existence, and that it is intended to aid in the erection of suitable county buildings, we desire to call attention to the undoubted fact that such a contract is absolutely worthless, and that the subscribers cannot be compelled to pay a dollar of the amount subscribed.

Under the decisions of the Supreme Court of this state such subscriptions or donations are held to be unconstitutional and void. They are decided to be against public policy. The soundness of this position is manifest. The location of the county seat should be selected solely with reference to the convenience and wishes of the people, uninfluenced by other considerations. Contracting to donate buildings is only an indirect way of buying the location.

If, therefore, the necessary majority should be for moving the county seat the taxpayers would find to their sorrow, when too late, that if the subscribers to the donation should refuse to voluntarily respond, the county would be compelled, at the unaided expense of the taxpayers, to go ahead at an expenditure of $100,000 or more for grounds and buildings. Are the tax payers willing to take these chances?

A majority vote would move the county seat to Amboy without condition, and it could not be retrieved for failure of the subscribers to come to time. Every voter and taxpayer should remember and reflect on this.

A Desperate Bad Lot.

It is a very serious thing to make men believe that which is untrue, and not only untrue but shamefully mischievous to the peace and security of the people and, indeed, the government. It is a serious thing to prejudice one class of people against another. To poison the water of a great city would be no greater crime than that now being committed by demagogues in their incendiary speech-making all over this once happy country.

The wickedness of this Bryanite campaign of lies and forgeries would be sufficiently damning if it were to be confined to the campaign and to end with election day; but it will not. In Bryan's speeches and in the editorials of the partisan journals there is a plain, anarchistic spirit that suggests riots if not civil war in the near future. It is an infamous thing to utter falsehoods for the sake of misleading men and inducing them to vote otherwise than as they would if they had heard only the truth. Yet this is what Mr. Bryan and his managers are endeavoring to do. They began with a wanton malicious forgery on the editorial page of Bryan's own paper, under his name as Editor—a forgery which has been repeatedly exposed, but never yet, so far as can be ascertained, retracted. They have persistently lied about laws of congress, calling good laws crimes, going on to attribute false provisions to the Constitution, to garble and distort a letter of Prince Bismarck's, to invent a spurious speech and credit it to Lincoln, to falsify and lie about editorials in the leading papers; forged editorials and published as coming from the London Financial News, and to do innumerable other jobs of the same kind. Their latest such performance—unhappily, it is to be feared, not their last—is the publication of what purports to be a circular letter sent out by the secretary of a banker's association, couched in infamous language, of which it is to be said that no such letter was ever written and no such secretary of such an association ever existed.

Our Band Wagon.

THE TELEGRAPH has been pleased to see men of all parties join in the election of McKinley, but really we don't know about taking in such Democrats as they have down in Kentucky, who throw bad eggs at each other. We are reminded of the esthetic deacon. It was during a religious revival in a Connecticut town many years ago that a good deacon, upon being consulted as to the application of one of the converts who had been an uncommonly bad man, for admission to the church, remarked, slowly and thoughtfully: "Well, I've no objections to Jim's 'experiencing religion, but we're a 'little crowded now; seems to me he 'had better join some other church." So far as those bad-egg partisans of Kentucky are concerned, the Republican party is a little crowded just now.

STONEHENGE.

The Old Mythology Enters into the Hearts of Visitors There.

It is a common remark that a feeling of disappointment is almost invariably experienced on a first visit to Stonehenge. This is partly due to the vast solitude in which the monument stands.
There is nothing near enough to it in any direction to furnish a standard by which to estimate the magnitude of the stones. Consequently they look much smaller than they really are, and we miss that imposing effect of immensity which everybody associates in advance with Stonehenge. Another cause of disappointment is what we must call the "reserve" of the monument. Mystery, whether vested in persons or things, has a fascination of its own, but the fascination is of a kind that is only enjoyable when the mysterious thing or person is not actually present.

We all know the delight of discussing interminably a person about whom no amount of discussion brings us nearer to knowledge, and we all know also the chilly, baffled feeling that takes possession of us when we pass from such discussion into the presence of the in-scrutable person. An impenetrable reserve is undoubtedly one of the striking characteristics of Stonehenge. And this reserve, however much it may increase the impressiveness of the monument as a subject of thought and speculation, certainly takes away from its impressiveness as an object contemplated by the bodily eye. We are so accustomed to the easily interpreted language—utilitarian and sentimental—of modern, medieval and classical buildings and monuments, that we hardly realize how much of the impression they make on us is due to the wide range of memories and associations they touch in ourselves until we are confronted with a monument like Stonehenge, the language of which is dead for us, and in whose presence we are reduced to the blank emotion of wonder. It is quite pathetic to see how, in the dearth of intelligible symbolism or appealing beauty, every observant visitor seizes eagerly, at his or her first visit to "the stones," upon the tons and mortise holes in the piers and the impost of the trilithons and the outer circle of Sarsens, as the only features which speak to us directly of the part played by human ingenuity in the construction of the temple. Those knobs on the upright stones and corresponding sockets in the lintels which the uprights support tell an unmistakable—albeit a very homely and practical —tale of labor for a definite and quite intelligible result.

At the moment of the summer solstice Stonehenge may, however, be said to relax its reserve and admit us for once into its confidence. It tells in visible signs the secret of its orientation to the midsummer sunrise, and its cold and monotonous grayness warms into color and life as the sunlight flows in under the lintels of the Sarsen circle and the piers shoot their sharp shadows over the ground. Then the stones cease to be dead stones—they seem to be responding sympathetically to the influence of the sun god, and something of the feeling of the old mythology enters into the hearts of all onlookers. Add to this touch of sentiment the solid satisfaction of having gained rough ocular demonstration of the truth of an assertion of the learned which we are incapable either of understanding in detail or attacking critically—and you have the answer to the question that is involuntarily suggested by the presence on the ground of a number of people who seem animated by the smallest amount possible of intelligent interest in the phenomena before them. "Why in the world have all these people come?"
When you have once seen the sunrise over the sun stone, you feel that you believe on your own account in the solar gible.—London Spectator.

Early Explosives and Guns.

There can be little doubt that the Greek fire of naphtha mentioned by early writers, European and Arabian, refers to a composition containing niter, sulphur and charcoal, and it is certain that Marcus Graecus, who, according to Didot and the "Biographie Universelle," wrote in the tenth century, although Mr. Guttman considers that the method of purifying the saltpeter described by him was unknown till the thirteenth, gives a composition for charging rockets and crackers closely approaching to that of modern blasting powder.

This recipe is quoted by Albertus Magnus, and Roger Bacon gives a vague one, complicated by an insoluble anagram supposed to stand for car-bonum pulvere. But all those writers and many others who mention such mixtures are absolutely silent as to the use of any such substance for the projection of missiles from tubes. On the contrary, they describe crackers and bombs, or maroons, and say that these were discharged into towns from bal-listae or catapults or mangonels purely for incendiary purposes. Mr. Guttman has, however, found in the "Wardrobe Accounts of Edward III." between Dec.
22, 1345, and Jan. 31, 1349, the following entry in Latin:

"To the same Thomas of Roldeston
for the king's work for his guns 912 pounds of saltpeter and 886 pounds of live sulphur."
This certainly confirms the tradition as to the use of guns by the English at Cressy in 1346. A considerable body of tradition ascribes the invention of guns to Berthold Schwartz, but the statements of the chronicles vary in date very greatly, and the most authentic put it very much later than Cressy—i. e., in 1359 and 1393. Curiously enough, Mr. Guttman decides in favor of Schwartz, but against the chronicles, that the date must have been about 1313, one which is difficult to reconcile with the date of Schwartz's death, given by the "Biographie Universelle" as 1384.—Athenaeum.

PRICE OF SILVER.

REASONS WHY IT WOULD NOT RISE
TO $1.29 AN OUNCE IN GOLD.

Bryan's Opinion Versus All Historical Facts—He Admits That a Panic Would Usher In His Millennium—As Price of Silver Would Not Go Up, the Panic
Would Be Unparalleled.

Mr. Bryan says he does not believe the silver dollar would depreciate to 51 cents or at all, but would continue to be worth 100 cents in gold, as now. Is this view sound?

If the silver dollar under free coinage is to remain worth 100 cents in gold, it is apparent that silver bullion must become worth $1.29 an ounce, for if worth less bullion holders would coin it for the profit, and this process would continue until no profit remained—that is, until the value of the silver dollar was just the same as the value of the bullion in it.

To do this it is necessary to raise the value of the world's stock of silver, which exceeds $4,000,000,000, from 65 cents, its present price, to $1.29 an ounce.

Mr. Bryan admits this. In his speech of acceptance he said, "We contend that free and unlimited coinage by the United States alone will raise the bullion value of silver to its coinage value, and thus make silver bullion worth $1.29 per ounce in gold throughout the world."

The question, therefore, is, would the demand in the United States for silver dollars over and above the present stock of 437,000,000 of them be sufficient to double the value of the world's stock of silver?

Mr. Bryan says it will, but admits he can't prove it, adding, "Neither can you prove that it won't." In Brooklyn, on Sept. 24, he said: "You cannot prove by mathematics that we can maintain a parity. Neither can you prove that we cannot."

The United States has had some experience in trying to raise the price of the world's stock of coin above its market value.

In 1860 the bullion in a silver dollar was worth $1.03 in gold, and the gold dollar, measured by silver, was depreciated 3 per cent. Our mints were open to the free coinage of gold as well as of silver. Did that raise the price of gold to par with silver? Not at all. Although the world's stock of gold is much smaller than its stock of silver, and although it was only necessary to raise it 3 per cent, we could not accomplish it.

This lasted from 1834 to 1860 and down to 1873. The price of gold bullion was not raised, and, being the cheaper currency, it drove the silver out of circulation. As no silver had been in circulation for over 35 years, in 1873, after full debate, this coin was omitted from our coinage list.

In 1792, under the ratio of 15 to 1 in force at that time, the bullion in a gold dollar was worth 3 cents more than the silver dollar, and the silver dollar, measured by gold, was depreciated 3 per cent. Silver, being the cheaper metal, drove gold entirely out of circulation for more than 40 years—i. e., until 1834—when the government changed the ratio from 15 to 1 to 16 to 1, with the effect seen above.

In 1860 we were a nation of over 30,- 000,000 of people and had no silver on hand. Now we are a nation of about 70,000,000 of people, but have 437,000,- 000 of silver dollars on hand.

If, with all our power, in 1860 we were unable to raise the bullion value of gold but 3 per cent, how can we expect to raise the bullion value of a larger quantity of silver not merely 3 per cent, but fully 32 times 3—i. e., 96 per cent?

If, in 1860, with over 30,000,000 of people, we had been able to raise the bullion value of gold just 3 per cent to par, then, being 2½ times as great a people now as we were then, we might expect to raise the bullion price of silver 2½ times as high—that is, 7 per cent—but how could we expect to raise its price, not 7 per cent alone, but more than thirteen times 7 per cent—i. e., 96 per cent—especially when the only power we have to raise it with is our demand for silver dollars, and that demand is already supplied to the extent of $437,000,000?

Yet, unless we succeed in thus nearly doubling the price of the entire world's stock of silver, the price of bullion must inevitably pull the value of the silver dollar down, as bullion would be coined as long as there was a profit—i. e., till the values met.

Mr. Bryan has presented his beliefs on this subject. Opposed to them stand fact and history, and not merely facts of this country alone, but of all countries.

But it is to be noted that even if the silver dollar did not depreciate we would not escape a panic, as foreign and domestic creditors believe it would depreciate, and would consequently call in debts and force sales just the same.

Mr. Bryan fully admits that a panic must result even if the silver dollar does not depreciate. In the Chicago convention he said, "When you come before us and tell us that we shall disturb our business interests, we reply that you have disturbed our business interests." And the St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported his saying: "I think it (meaning the victory of the free coinage movement) will cause a panic. But the country is in a deplorable condition, and it will take extreme measures to restore it to a condition of prosperity."

Therefore a panic is confessedly certain to follow Bryan's election, whether silver depreciates or not.

If, as our own experience and all history show, the silver dollar must drop to about 50 cents, the disastrous consequences which will follow will probably be unparalleled in our history.

We'll wager that the Kentucky fowl which lays eggs stamped "16 to 1" is not a hen, but a goose.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

Showing the Effect of Free Coinage Upon the Currency of the United States.

$600,100,000

GOLD MONEY

IN UNITED STATES

$625,600,000

SILVER MONEY

(Depreciated value under free coinage, $312,800,000)

PAPER MONEY

(Depreciated value under free coinage, $191,650,000)

Present value,

$383,300,000.

The above diagram represents a pocket argument which is being used very effectively by speakers in explanation of the financial issues of the campaign. The upper section, it will be observed, represents the good money of the country—$600,100,000. The second section represents the silver money of the country, whose present value is $625,600,000, but which, should it become depreciated by the withdrawal of the government's support under free coinage, would shrink to one-half of its present value—thus amounting to $312,800,000. The third section represents the "uncovered" paper money. Its present value is $383,300,000, but as it would naturally share the depreciation which would come to the other money of the country through free coinage, its value would be cut down to $191,650,000.

If the country should adopt the free coinage of silver the entire gold money would disappear, as it has done in other countries having free coinage of silver and as it always has done when an attempt has been made to maintain the free coinage of two metals at other than the commercial ratio.

The object lesson which this card presents is to show at a glance what would happen to the present currency of the country should free coinage be adopted. This is accomplished as follows:

First, fold backward out of sight the section containing the gold money, which would disappear under free coinage.

Second, fold backward at the dotted lines the upper half of the section representing the silver money, since it is apparent that free coinage would reduce the silver money to the commercial value of the metal, which is practically one-half of the value at which the government now maintains it.

Third, fold backward the lower half of the section representing paper money, which would also be depreciated in an equal proportion, since the metallic currency of the country would be only silver coins passing at the commercial value of the metals in them.

By this process you are able to show the enormous reduction in the value of money of the country which would follow the free coinage of silver, since the government would not, of course, attempt to maintain the dollars which it would coin for individuals at any more than the commercial value of the silver put into it.

By this simple explanation, it becomes apparent at a glance that the money of the country, now amounting to $1,609,000,000, would shrink to $504,- 450,000 in value, or less than one-third of the present amount.

This illustration is being used by many speakers in the campaign, who have provided themselves with strips of cardboard hinged together at the lines which separate the silver, gold and paper, and also in the middle of the strips representing the silver and paper. These strips of cardboard are usually covered with paper of an appropriate color—yellow for gold, white for the silver, and green for the paper money. The above diagram, however, answers the purpose equally as well, and those who desire to make use of the illustration in personal conversation or argument can do so by using the printed slips, or, what would be better by pasting it upon strips of cardboard or heavy paper cut to the proper length and hinged together with strips of cloth which will make it durable and convenient for pocket use.

HELP OF THE WOMEN

ALLIES OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY
IN ILLINOIS

An Address to All Interested in the Exercise of the School Franchise, by Mrs. L.
B. Shattuck—What the Word "Republican" Means This Year.

Great Northern Hotel, Chicago, Ills., Oct. 20, 1896.—To the Women of Illinois: It is one of our proud boasts that the child of an American citizen, however humble his lot, may acquire an education in our public schools. All concede that the standard of civilization is exactly commensurate with the intelligence of the people. We, as Illinois women in the exercise of the school franchise which is ours, are thus directly responsible, so far as our individual votes are concerned, for the proper selection, first, for the candidates for whom we may vote; second for their election.

It goes without saying that the possession of any franchise implies a duty
—that of faithful and intelligent use.
While local elections may touch our interests more nearly, yet the claims of the university of the great commonwealth should not by any means be ignored. Women who do not evince a sustained effort to perform this duty of citizenship can scarcely afford to sit in judgment upon other voters who so often neglect their duty at the primary and the polls.

In its national platform the Republican platform recognizes the rights of women as follows: "The Republican party is mindful of the rights and interests of women. Protection of American industries includes equal opportunities, equal pay for equal work, and protection to the home. We favor the admission of women to wider spheres of usefulness, and welcome their co-operation in rescuing the country from Democratic and Populist mismanagement and misrule."

It is further declared: "By these principles we will abide, and these policies we will put into execution," has been carried out by the national committee of Illinois in welcoming the cooperation of women in the present campaign. The grave questions at stake have of themselves stirred every loyal woman to a deep sense of the duty of citizenship at the polls, for whatever affects the integrity, the safety and prosperity of the government cannot fail to affect the home. This campaign has been one of education, and the feminine intellect has been quite capable to grasp the proper solution of its issues.

This year Republican women in convention assembled at Springfield, April 27, named Mrs. Mary Turner Carriel of Jacksonville as their choice for trustee, believing that a minority representation of women upon the governing board of the university would be of distinct advantage to the interests of the students at Champaign. The regular state convention of the Republican party in recognition of this action placed Mrs. Carriel upon their ticket.

Two years hence Republican women will hold their state convention at least two weeks prior to that of the men's and report officially to the latter the result of their deliberations. It is believed this arrangement will commend itself to the good sense of all concerned.

Over 40,000 Illinois women voted in 1894 for university trustees; of these 25,000 and more voted in Chicago and Cook county. Unfortunately, no record was kept of the number of votes cast by women for their respective tickets. It was therefore impossible to base the apportionment of the delegates to the women's convention upon the number of votes cast by them, but the next state convention will probably be thus apportioned, and the Republican women are therefore urged to perfect county and township organizations, all to be auxiliary to the Republican organization of Illinois.

The object should be "to stimulate a greater degree of interest in the public schools and the University of Illinois, and especially and at all times to teach Republican principles and to promote good government."

The value of organized effort in any direction is well recognized. When motives are good, principles are sound and adherents upright the power of such organized efforts is generally proportioned to the strength of numbers.

It is further urged upon women to bear in mind what the word "Republican" means in this year of grace, 1896, and they are strenuously solicited to avoid the mistake of voting for any other woman than Mrs. Carriel for trustee.

Two other candidates on the ticket will not be remiss in their duty of caring for all students at the university.
There is no consistency in Republicans voting for three women simply as women when Republican women have only asked for the renomination of one woman at the hands of their party.
Women are respectfully requested to ally themselves with the Republican organization of their respective counties if already established, or, if otherwise, to interest themselves in effecting such organization.

Any communication addressed to this committee will receive prompt attention. MRS. L. B. SHATTUCK, Chairman Woman's Republican State Central Committee.

"Mr. Tanner, as a Democrat I am going to vote for you. If you are elected governor I shall watch you and if you do not conduct an honest administration in the interest of the people I shall fight you after election." So spoke Chairman Adolph Moses at a meeting of 2,000 Hebrew Republicans in Metropolitan hall, Jefferson and O'Brien streets, Chicago. John R. Tanner and other speakers who appeared were enthusiastically received. A large crowd was attracted early by a band, and there were distributed enough Republican literature printed in Hebrew to pave several blocks of sidewalk. The hall was decorated for the occasion, lithographs, maps and pictures covering the entire wall space.

Bryan is for free coal, and spoke the following words in favor of free coal
while in congress:

"COAL IS ANOTHER RAW MATERIAL
PLACED UPON THE FREE
LIST. THE DUTY ON COAL IS IN-DEFENSIBLE. EVEN IF WE WERE ADJUSTING A PROTECTIVE TARIFF
ACCORDING TO THE REPUB-LICAN PLATFORM."

Coal miners should remember this when they come to vote.

An Editor's Confessions.

Years ago a young and thoughtless man carrying on the profession, trade or business of a free lance journalist presumed to congratulate a friend upon the dignity of his position as assistant editor of a great daily paper. Those were the days when editors were editors, when nobody dreamed of assigning the title of news editor or sporting editor to the man who divided his time between the scissors, the paste and the noisome and oleaginous flimsy or to the man who knocked into shape the effusions of the sporting reporter. Those were the days also when to be an assistant editor was to occupy a position of responsibility, trust and power, whereas in these times the assistant editor is too often nothing better than the editor's secretary. The assistant editor and the free lance journalist were not far apart in age. They had almost been contemporaries at Oxford, but the man of dignified position had a harassed and weary look, tired eyes and a ragged beard, and the free lance was young and lusty as an eagle. And this was the answer to the congratulation:

"My dear X, wait until you have tried your hand as an editor, then you will know what it is to long for the days that are past. You will realize that the life of a tolerably successful contributor is a thousand times more choice-worthy than that of an editor. I used to write with pleasure and to take a modest pride in my work. Now I never write a line except to fill up 'white' or to make an article turn the column.
Much of my time is spent in spoiling
the work of others."—National Review.

Saved by a Cool Head.

Sir Andrew Clarke, while traveling in Italy, ascended a high tower one evening and found at the top another tourist, an Englishman. They chatted pleasantly for a few minutes, when suddenly the stranger seized Sir Andrew by the shoulders and said quietly, "I am going to throw you over." The man was a maniac. The physician had only a moment in which to gather his thoughts, but that moment saved him.
"Pooh," he replied unconcernedly,
"anybody can throw a man off the tower! If we were on the ground, you could not throw me up. That would be too difficult." "Yes, I could," retorted the maniac. "I could easily throw you up here from the ground. Let us go down, and I will do it." The descent was accordingly made, during which Sir Andrew managed to secure help and release himself from his perilous situation.—San Francisco Argonaut.

An Enterprising Thief.

"The most enterprising thief I ever heard of was one whom I was appointed by the court to defend," said Henry W.
Joy, a prominent St. Louis lawyer. "A wealthy man died, and as fine a coffin was obtained as money could buy. There was some very heavy solid silver plate on it. As the hearse moved off a well dressed, businesslike looking man was seen to enter it, carrying a little sack as if of tools. Every one who noticed him at all supposed he was an assistant of the undertaker. Just before the procession reached the cemetery the man emerged from the hearse and went ahead, disappearing at the gate. When the coffin was removed, all of the trappings were gone, and the young man was not to be found. He melted the silver and sold it, and had it not been for a pal betraying him he would never have been caught."—Washington Star.

Power of Modern Guns.

A calculation of the power of a modern gun brings out the singular fact that the active life of a 100 ton gun is just one second. An Italian cannon of this caliber, with a charge of 550 pounds of powder and a shot weighing about 2,000 pounds, will give an initial velocity of 523 meters per second. The length of the time during which the powder acts is less than one hundredth of a second, and after 100 shots the cannon is put out of service.

It is estimated that during the active period of the work of the powder in the gun the mean power is greater than 87,000,000 foot pound per hundredth of a second—say 8,700,000,000 foot pounds per second. This represents a power of 12,000,000 kilowatts, or 17,- 000,000 horsepower.—Detroit News.

sport of pigeon shooting at Heiligen-damm, a fashionable resort on the Baltic, who were arrested at the instiga-

the police discovered that he was none other than their sovereign, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who was staying there incognito.

A Witty Forlornity.

A forlorn looking man said: "I've

there's a wonderful echo, to see if I can make that answer."—New York Advertiser.

HIS FAVORITE ROLE.

Among my dearest memories of Italy is that of the evenings I used to spend in Venice with the Cavalier Cioegna, as he was known upon the stage. We usually sat in the garden of the Osteria until late into the night—sometimes tete-a-tete, sometimes in the company of old Captain Amati.

By the garden of the Osteria one is not to understand anything like that which the name, used elsewhere, might imply. It was simply a small courtyard about 12 feet square and was paved with slabs of marble. Four high walls inclosed it like a funnel, and from three of these the court was overlooked by windows and balconies which, as a rule, were festooned with grimy washings. But, unless one chose, he need see nothing of this, for above our table—there was space for only one—the branches of a noble vine interlaced to form a thick screen of foliage.

Thus one could sit here quite cool and comfortable, and, when the moon came up over the tall chimney tops and its silver lines threaded the dense mass of leaves and tendrils and dallied with the bottle of dark Trentino which stood on the mottled marble before us, this very garden became a little world full of poetry. Then was the place well suited to the tales of the Cavalier Cioegna.

In his jokes, anecdotes and stories, the Italy of the robbers and romantic wars, the Italy of the Austrian occupation and of secret conspiracies, the Italy of Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel, and, not least of all—for Cavalier Cioegna had been one of the most distinguished impersonators of Doctor Bartolo and Don Pasquale—the Italy of Rossini and Donizetti. Here the old man told us the story of Signor Campobassi, concerning which he declared somewhat violently, as was his wont, that the Madonna might withdraw her favor from him if every word were not the truth. The story which he had told us repeatedly, as was his custom, ran as follows:

"Are you familiar with Farli? No. Well, it does not lie on the regular route of tourists, and I am not surprised that you are not acquainted with it. But you know it by name, captain, do you not? And you have no doubt heard of Signor Campobassi—but only casually, eh? I knew him well. I have sat with him over Refresco as we sit here over this Trentino. He was a very agreeable comrade, and it grieved us all to lose him. The ladies adored him, for he was a slender, finely formed fellow, with the most beautiful eyes in the world and a mustache—as if the Madonna herself had meant him for a tenor. We men liked him because we had in him a true friend, and one who always stood ready to help with his purse or his dagger, and who had no trace of haughtiness about him, although he was the favorite of the public. He was one of those exceptional men who have not an enemy.

"But I forgot. Farli is in the vicinity of Rome, at the foot of the Abruzzi mountains, a small but rich and very flourishing town. It was in the fifties that I went thither with a newly formed company.

"Farli had a very spacious new theater. We pleased the public, did a thriving business and accordingly were well suited to stay there. But it was our primo tenore, Signore Campobassi, who awakened the most interest. Our impresario smiled contentedly whenever he chanced to mention him, and said, with a knowing look, 'That was the best hit I ever made.' I can still remember well to what straits he had been put for a tenor. He refused to lay out much money for one, and tenors, as a rule, are high in their prices. Then one day, as we were sitting in the cafe, Campobassi appeared, inquired for the director and asked him to try his voice. He said he was a peasant's son from the neighborhood of Areggo, but even as a child he had had such an ear for music that he knew by heart all the airs he had ever heard. It was the opinion among his acquaintances that he could sing finely, and so he had thought that he might make his fortune in the opera. Now, he had heard that Signor Mario was looking for a tenor, and so he had made haste hither to offer himself.

"Our impresario was a cunning fox and shook his head gravely at this. 'It would be a great deal of trouble to coach you,' he said. But Campobassi replied that on this account he would be content with a very small salary.

"Signor Mario still shook his head, but he took up his glass, contemplated for awhile the dissolving bits of ice and finally drank the remainder of his 'granito' with an air of decision.

"Well, we will try it," said he. 'Colleagues, if you have any desire to be present at the rehearsal, follow me.'

"We were all curious enough, so we started for the theater in spite of the midday heat. There Campobassi sang a couple of airs from the most familiar operas, and the more he sang the more significantly did Mario wink at us. His fat, round face fairly shone and glowed for joy. Nevertheless at the end he said rather coolly, 'You will make us much work, Campobassi, but I will give you a trial.'

"As a matter of fact, the trouble he made us was very slight. He had such an extraordinary musical ear that he retained the most difficult passages if they had been sung before him only once correctly. In addition, he had a natural facility for acting; so that he was less awkward than many tenors of long experience. It is true his performances lacked artistic finish, but the crudities in his singing were atoned for by the stupendous 'material,' a voice which surmounted everything and was yet of the purest and most beautiful quality. Such a tenor had not been heard for many a day in Farli, and people thronged the theater only for the sake of hearing him. Campobassi was soon the idol of the Farlies. If two men were found quarreling anywhere, one might be sure that Campobassi was the subject of the dispute, and if a maiden, lost in reverie, appeared to see nothing and hear nothing, one might stake one's life that she was all the while seeing and hearing Campobassi.

"One forenoon, after rehearsal, we were sitting under the arcades of the Piazza dei Signori, drinking our coffee. We had been chatting about everything possible and impossible, and one of us at last turned the conversation to the subject of favorite roles. Each one named his own—I, Dr. Bartolo; Pedroccchi, Rigoletto. Mario said jokingly that his favorite opera was the one in which he had least to do. Campobassi was silent.

"At length we pressed him to confess his own preferences, but he shrugged his shoulders and replied, laughing: 'My favorite role? That is probably my own secret.'

"No secrets among the colleagues,' grumbled Pedroccchi.

"No secrets? was Campobassi's answer. 'Well, perhaps I will play you my favorite role tonight.'

"Oh, the Trovatore!' we exclaimed, for we were to bring out the opera on that day for the first time in Farli. Campobassi shrugged his shoulders again, and we broke off the conversation at this point, as our prima donna came toward us under the arcades.

"On the evening of the same day the 'Trovatore' was placed on the boards. All that Farli possessed of aristocracy and distinction was present at the theater that night. Not a seat was vacant. The great expectations which were cherished concerning Campobassi's performance were not disappointed. Here he could give himself free rein, and his voice rang through the house not like a tenor—no, like a choir of tenors. The applause would not cease, and Campobassi was called out repeatedly.

"At last came the 'Stretta.' Now the audience would surely be thrown into ecstasies, and we had not deceived ourselves. Wreath after wreath was flung from the boxes, all the people stamped their feet, clapped and cried 'Viva!' and 'Da Capo!' Finally Campobassi, smiling, made a gesture to signify that he would repeat the 'Stretta.' The storm was laid, and it grew suddenly so still in the theater that one could have heard the buzzing of a fly. We all stood there behind the scenes and beheld Campobassi step forward to the footlights, a departure from custom which did not strike us oddly, for tenors are allowed many liberties.

"But what was that? He was saying something in an undertone to the orchestra, and the musicians, who had already begun the opening bars, broke off in their playing. Instead of the notes of the 'Stretta' we heard Campobassi speak—speak words which made the blood stiffen in our veins, which threw such a spell over us that we were unable to stir from the spot long after Campobassi had finished his speech.

"I can remember it as vividly as if it had all happened yesterday. 'Honored patrons and citizens of Farli,' he began—and probably at this point he made one of his consummately graceful bows—I thank you for the affection you have shown for me, the more since this is my farewell appearance. After tonight you will, I fear, hardly care to hear me again. I beg you will all remain quietly in your seats, for then, upon my honor, not a hair of any one's head shall be molested. Any movement can only lead to mischief, for my men are patrolling the corridors and all the exits are guarded. Nor can help come to you from the direction of the stage, for the enlarged chorus which has tonight sung so valiantly consists, for the most part, of my own people, and they also are well furnished with weapons. I am, honored patrons, the Fra Angelo whose name is certainly well known to you. I, too, am armed, as you see, and these pistols are well loaded. But far be it from me to inflict any injury upon you who have shown me so much consideration—my word for that. At this very moment a member of the chorus has already taken our honored impresario in charge. That I shall not exact tribute of my colleagues you will naturally infer. On the other hand, honored patrons, I have often provided entertainment for you, and it is on that account justifiable that I should require some recompense from you, more especially since our impresario has paid me an honorarium which my sense of shame will not permit me to name. So have the kindness, good people, to deliver your watches, rings, chains, purses and the like with all alacrity to those who will now pass from seat to seat. The exits are guarded, as I have remarked, and the more generously and quietly you perform your part the quicker will this business be accomplished. In the meantime I will ask the orchestra to play some favorite airs, which may serve as an agreeable distraction for those who have discharged their obligations.'

"In truth, the orchestra did commence to play, and, as we learned later, everything passed off as Fra Angelo had wished. As a matter of fact, all his threats had been superfluous, for the name of the famous bandit had alone sufficed to render every one helpless.

"Fra Angelo supervised the entire transaction from the stage, said a few words of thanks when it was ended, then turned toward the flies. As he passed us he clapped me laughingly on the shoulder and said, 'Did I not tell you, Cioegna, that I should play my favorite role tonight?'

"With that he vanished, and we rushed terrified out into the open air. The audience streamed out at the doors in unwonted haste, and the first among them had already summoned the guardians of the so called public safety. A few moments later the signals of the carabinieri sounded through the streets of the town, but of Fra Angelo and his men not a trace was to be found."

From the German For Short Stories.

The Schoolboy and the Emperor.

The organ of the schoolmasters, The Allgemeine Deutsche Lehrerzeitung, relates an episode of Kaiser Wilhelm's visit to Wiesbaden. When he was riding along the Tannus strasse at the head of his suit on Monday, a small boy ran after him and cried out as he frantically waved his cap, "Herr Kaiser, Herr Kaiser, get us a holiday tomorrow!" The emperor laughed, and, with a friendly wink to the lad, called out, "We shall manage it." Accordingly on the next day all the lads and lasses of the town were informed that the day was "schulfrei," and wherever the kaiser appeared he was naturally greeted as a liberator, with the full power of youthful lungs.

Hogs and Storms.

Hogs are always more restless than usual on the approach of bad weather, and when these animals run to and fro with mouthfuls of straw, leaves or branches the indication is for very foul weather. In their native state pigs probably made their own beds, and when bad weather was coming perhaps gathered a larger supply of straw or leaves than usual to serve as a protection against the rain.

The Influence of Clothes.

He—Did you ever observe what a difference clothes make on one's mind? Now, when I am in my riding togs, I'm all horse; when I have on my business suit, my mind's full of business; when I get into my evening dress, my mind takes a purely social turn.

She—And I suppose that when you take a bath your mind's an utter blank.

Mr. Sewall is also a stickler for "regularity." He inserts the gold clause in his shipping contracts with a regularity that is simply perfect.—Kansas City Journal.

Gold More Stable Than Silver.

"As long as gold, either from its intrinsic superiority as a metal, from its rarity or from the prejudices of mankind, retains so considerable a pre-eminence in value over silver as it has hitherto had, a natural consequence of this seems to be that its condition will be more stationary. The revolutions, therefore, which may take place in the comparative value of gold and silver will be changes in the state of the latter rather than in that of the former."—Alexander Hamilton.

POPULAR LOW-PRICE CALIFORNIA EXCURSIONS.

The Santa Fe route personally conducted weekly excursions to California are deservedly popular. About one-third saved in price of railroad and sleeper tickets as compared with first-class passage.

The improved Pullmans occupied by these parties are of 1896 pattern and afford every necessary convenience. A porter goes through each car, and an experienced agent of the company is in charge.

The Santa Fe's California line is remarkably picturesque, and its middle course across the continent avoids the discomforts of extreme heat or cold.

Daily service, same as above, except as regards agent in charge.

THE WEATHER.

The following is the weather forecast telegraphed us at 9:50 o'clock a.m. today from the government observatory at Chicago:

Generally tonight and Tuesday, slight warmer tonight.

JOS. STERN,

Opera House Block.

Successor to STERN BROS.

Cloaks, Capes and Jackets!

The handsomest and newest styles, that will suit the most fastidious taste, and are correct in every particular you will find here. Our prices are unmatchable; they will convince you at once that it is to your interest to buy your winter wraps of us.

Blankets and Comforters.

Now is the time to buy while prices like these prevail.

At 49c a pair we offer a full 10-4 size, (not a small, narrow skimpy thing that passes for a blanket!) ours are full size, warm and fleecy.

At 75c a pair a full 11-4 size blanket. At $1.98 a pair an extra heavy white 11-4 blanket, usually sold at $2.50.

At $2.49 a pair an extra heavy white home-made blanket, strictly all wool, and will outlast any blanket costing 50 per cent. more.

At $4.98, $3.95 and $2.98, we offer the best blankets, strictly all wool, ever sold for the price.

COMFORTERS, full size, best prints, warm and heavy, at only 98c.

Comforters, best twilled saten on both sides, cotton filled, also home-made comforters, at $1.95, $1.73 and $1.49.

Novelty Dress Goods.

40 inches wide, in the very newest weaves, silk mixtures, checks and rough effects, at 75c, 55c, 47c and 39c a yard.

Black Dress Goods.

We show a larger and handsomer line than you will find anywhere in Dixon. Black or Navy-blue, all wool French Serge at 25c a yard.

Black, all wool Figured Novelty Cloth, also silk and wool Sisard Cloth, newest designs, 46 inches wide, at 98c, 75c and 50c a yard.

Ladies' Cloth Overgaiters, good quality, at 25c a pair and up.

Real Down Pillows at 50c each.

SAILING AWAY IN STYLE

with a pair of Haley & Drew's new fall styles in shoes is what ladies, children and gentlemen do that visit their store. You need no better pedal navigating craft than you can buy from us, as they will never spring a leak till they are worn out, and for comfort, beauty, durability and style, they haven't an equal.

Haley & Drew,

15 First Street.

—In mentioning the person who gave the alarm at the fire in Edwards' book store, a mistake was made in the name. It was Miss McCarroll and not Miss Bogue, who lives elsewhere.

—The Young Men's Catholic Temperance Society hold installation of officers tonight at their hall in the Appleford building at 8 o'clock. The Ladies Auxillary society is requested to be present.

—Nelson Premon has moved his shooting gallery from near J. W. Kent's gun shop to the rooms over Raymond's shoe store. He will run a bowling gallery in connection with the shooting gallery.

The annual meeting of the salesmen of the Grand Detour Plow Co. is being held today at the Plow Co's office. Among those here are John L. Gritzer of Council Bluffs, W. P. Briggs of Lincoln, Neb., and J. W. Foy of Geneseo, Ill.

—The rally at Nachusa Saturday evening was addressed by A. C. Bardwell and Judge J. D. Crabtree. Mr. Betteha, who was to speak, was called to Ashton as they were afraid that the speakers from Chicago would not arrive.

—Mrs. Elizabeth A. Roysse, of 291 First street, died Saturday at a hospital from the effects of an operation she had undergone for the removal of a tumor. She was buried from the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Graves, at Ambovy this afternoon.

—A number from here attended the Catholic Fair at Harmon Saturday night. Among them were H. McCarroll, F. Welch, S. Callaghan, Wm. Curran, Chas. Slain and Albert O'Malley. Good music is being furnished by Chapple and Williams' orchestra.

—"Kid" Lavinge and Jack Everhan signed articles Saturday morning at New York city for a twenty-five round contest to take place before the Bohemian Athletic Club of New York. They are to weight 136 pounds and are to battle for the championship of the world.

—The new rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church of this city, Rev. John C. Sage, is from Berwyn, Ill., and with his wife and one child will occupy the Miss Finley house, corner of Ottawa and Fifth street. There will be no service in the church next Sunday, as the building is to be fitted with new furnaces, etc.

—Col. E. S. Bond, a well known citizen of our state died at the home of his brother-in-law, Capt. William Parker, in Rock Falls Saturday morning at 5:15, aged sixty-eight years. Col. Bond was a man of dignified and imposing presence and for many years was engaged in journalism in this and other states. In 1859 he purchased the interest of S. W. Beckwith in the Republican and Telegraph, becoming thereby a co-partner with I. S. Boardman, and for a time was a resident of our city; finally selling out to his partner, he removed to Cincinnati, we believe. Several years ago his health failed, and his wife having died, he has latterly made his home with his sister, Mrs. Wm. Parker.

—For the last time we would call attention to the importance of the ladies who expect to exercise the elective franchise next week, seeing that their names are properly entered on the registry list. The registry boards will meet for the last time tomorrow at the various polling places; and certainly every lady who listened to the clear and logical address of Mrs. Plummer Saturday afternoon, with as many of her friends as she can influence, will wish to vote for the University Trustees. To avoid all possible annoyance and delay on election day, every citizen who is a voter should see that his or her name is registered tomorrow in the proper precinct. Married ladies should give their individual first names, not the name of their husband, for instance, Mrs. Susan Smith, not Mrs. John Smith.

—The Dixon Sun quotes from General Sickles language that should not have been used by even a New York Democrat. To call Watson a mule and Bryan an ass was language that should not be charged up to Republicanism, as General Sickles is a Democrat, and has always been a Tammany leader. Republicans are not in any manner responsible for opinions individuals of the opposite party may express with regard to each other. On the other hand, here are some expressions equally refined which the Omaha Daily Sun, one of the leading Popocratic papers in Bryan's own state, uses in speaking of the men who have proved their fidelity to their country by leaving their limbs on her hard-fought battlefields: "A carload of old bunnies, called 'Generals' are now touring the country on free passes telling the people how to vote. They were in Omaha last night. When the people stop to consider why such skunks are so terribly interested, it is enough to settle the matter that it is not any love for the poor man or the laborer that prompts these 'Generals' to thus swing around the circle."

What Makes Interest Low.

What keeps interest high is uncertainty. That means lack of confidence. That means low credit and high interest.

In Idaho, Montana and other far west states the average interest on farm loans is over 10 per cent. Idaho has had the severest laws enacted against usury, but these have not made interest low. Montana has failed to pay her own drafts. Those who have money to loan are afraid to lend in states where the state itself fails to pay its debts. In the older states where debts never have been repudiated the interest on farm loans averages from 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 per cent. This is because men who have money to loan believe that they will get their money back. They do not have to charge high insurance in the interest for fear they may lose the principal.

The reason western farmers have had to pay high interest is that those who had money to lend were uncertain what they would get back. They had been uncertain because they feared repudiation or debased money. Repudiation by southern states for years kept money out of the south and kept interest high. The free coinage movement at the west has had the same effect.

When sound money comes to stay, those with money to lend will be more ready to lend it and ready to lend it cheaper. This is truly "cheap money."

When the last bonds were sold, the secretary of the treasury stated to congress that he could save $16,000,000 interest if congress would say that the bonds would be payable not only "in coin," but "in gold." People expected they would be paid in gold, but they wanted to be sure. The difference between being half sure and being sure was $16,000,000 in interest.

It is "cheap interest" the western farmer needs, not "cheap money." He can get "cheap interest" with sound money, and in no other way.

That is true of all borrowers who need money to carry on their business. —New York World.

Swindling Old Soldiers.

The value of the pension secured by the wounded veterans, whose monthly payment from the government is in a great many cases their sole support, depends entirely upon its purchasing power. If that power be high, it will buy a much larger supply of the necessities of life than if calculated in cheap dollars. It requires no argument to prove that, if this country adopts the silver standard, prices as based on dollars containing 50 cents' worth of silver will be just twice as high as they are now. Values will be no higher, and the farmer or worker will get no more than he does now, but nominal prices will be doubled. As the number of dollars paid for pensions is fixed, it follows that if paid in silver dollars the pensioner would receive only one-half as much, measured in commodities, rent, etc., as he does under the gold standard.

These are facts which the silverites have never attempted to deny. Nor have they ever proposed to double the pensions which are paid to the old soldiers, their widows and orphans. Now, then, can they expect the country to adopt a financial system which would dishonestly rob the pensioners of one-half of their income?

The Workingman's Alternative.

If our workmen think their wages are too high by 50 per cent and would rather have them paid in dollars that will buy only half as much in the markets and at the stores, they will vote for Mr. Bryan and free coinage of silver. If they think, as we do, that this would be "free and unlimited" folly on their part, they will stand by Thomas Jefferson's common sense doctrine that dollars should be coined as near the market ratio as possible, so that they will buy 100 cents' worth of goods wherever they are tendered. —Baltimore Sun.

The Crime of 1896.

The "golden" wheat and the "silver" white cotton have united to put about $150,000,000 more of effete Europe's wealth into the pockets of the American farmers than last year's crop brought. A national convention of Popocrats should be called at once to denounce this terrible "crime of 1896," which has been committed just as Bryan's tears were melting the hardest heart as he sobbingly told of the sorrows and tribulations of the farmers. —Louisville Post.
